Water Delivery Principles

For your zero energy Papa Pump site to be viable you must have...

A spring, stream or river with a flow of at least 50 litres per minute and the watercourse must fall to give you a Supply Head of a least 1 metre.

The Supply Head is the difference between the highest point of your watercourse and the lowest point across your land

The greater the Supply Head, the greater the amount of water you can deliver and the higher you can potentially lift the water.

The main objectives to planning an efficient system is to maximise the Supply Head but to keep the Supply Pipe (between the Supply Tank and the Pump) as short as possible. You can achieve this by running the Feed Pipe (between the Catchment and the Supply Tank) along the contours of the land as shown below.

How Ram Pumps Work

Water Delivery Principles

For your zero energy Papa Pump site to be viable you must have...

A spring, stream or river with a flow of at least 50 litres per minute

and the watercourse must fall to give you a Supply Head of a least 1 metre.

The Supply Head is the difference between the highest point of your watercourse and the lowest point across your land

The greater the Supply Head, the greater the amount of water you can deliver

The main objectives to planning an efficient system is to maximise the Supply Head but to keep the Supply Pipe (between the Supply Tank and the Pump) as short as possible. You can achieve this by running the Feed Pipe (between the Catchment and the Supply Tank) along the contours of the land as shown below.

Inside the Papa Ram Pump

How It Works - Operation

Water enters the ram pump through the supply port and around the main valve to the delivery port.

As pressure increases around the main valve, a high differential pressure occurs. The main valve then suddenly closes. The flow of water is then directed through the non-return valve into the delivery port, creating a higher pulsed flow.

This pressure suddenly reduces, causing the main valve to reopen and the cycle repeats.
